MIS Primary Class Activity: Investigators Talk for Year 5

For the 'Investigators' IPC Unit in Year 5, students learned about how to carry out scientific investigations focusing on materials and their properties. This includes exposure to several important scientific skills such as chromatography, Ph indicators (how it changes when it touches an acid or alkali), designing fair investigations and having lots of fun!

In order to learn the importance of scientific evidence in coming to conclusions and proving scientific theories, Year 5 has invited four forensic police officers from the Negeri Sembilan Criminal Investigation Division for a talk on how they carry out crime investigations and methods needed to prove their conclusions during prosecution cases. Year 5 enjoyed dusting and tracing their fingerprints using actual police tools!

Visual Feast of Art In MPS

The painting is about the colours of happiness and it is an abstract art. In this painting, I want to share the happiness in my life. The media that I used was poster colour.

MPS corridors are now adorned with paintings created by our talented students.

I drew this from the thrilling and moving Halloween night experience I had with my family.

My painting is about snowy mountains. I wanted to show my skills in this painting. I completed it in five days. I used blue, white and black colours. I put this idea on canvas because it will show the coolness of the painting.

This idea is a reference from the internet. So, I can't say it's my original idea. I want to use this idea on my canvas because it has a unique scenery and shows harmony of the combination of colours.

I chose to draw a lion because it is the king of the jungle. I used acrylic paint. It took me five days to draw the lion with help from my classmate, Celest. I'm glad that my friends support me even though I'm sick when I was painting this. I'm thankful that I have kind friends and teacher to support me.
